YEAR BOOK BOARD

PROLOGUE

If, through the years that swiftly roll,
  And cast their shadows on the past,
Obscuring the thoughts of yesterday
  These hallowed pages still shall last;

If in the rush of busy days
  You cast one backward thought,
Toward the land from which you sailed,
  And the battles you have fought;

If to one heart this book recalls,
  Some sweet forgotten strain,
In future years; we shall not think,
  Our labors have been vain.

B. T. D.

Class of 1922

Each one his ship has fitted out
To sail the "Seas of Life"; - - - -
The skill and courage of each one
Shall tested be by strife. - - - - -

CLASS HONORS

The Ship of 1922 in flaming orange, as of old
Sails from the lea of High School days into life's sea; her sails shine gold.

ADVICE TO YOUTH

Come, choose your road and away, My Lad,
While the skies are bright and blue;
And waste not your time on the road, My Lad,
For days like these are few.

II.

Now, I, like you, saw a road, My Lad,
That led to a castle fair;
But I wasted time on the road, My Lad,
And my castles have vanished in the air.

M. O'C.

This year the Seniors presented "Disraeli," written by Mr. Louis N. Parker, who was most courteous about allowing the class to use his play.

The outstanding playing was done by "Sandy" Clyde.

His force in the strong scenes, his tenderness in the gentler ones, and his quizzical dryness in the humorous ones, were the work of a finished performer.

Of the other members of the cast, it must be said that most of them were better than the average. Caroline Brine, as Lady Beaconsfield, the wife of Disraeli, was the soul of tender affection for her sorely tried husband, and the delicate shading of her representation of the frail woman, growing weaker every day, was unusually good. David Bakeless, as Viscount Deeford, was a splendid combination of English conceit and sturdy dependability, and he was notably helped by Marie Lamkin's vivacious and charming Clarissa. Frances Morgan moved with stately beauty and occasional coquetry through the play to its climax, when with startling fire she disclosed herself as a spy in Russian pay. Sidney Rudman's acting of the part of the quiet Hugh Meyers, and his splendid characterization of the same man, broken under the weight of more pressure than he could understand, was in direct antithesis to Donald Howard's equally strong presentation of the haughty, unbending Governor of the Bank of England.

The Duke and the Duchess, played by Paul Sullivan and Eleanor Flynn, were excellent. The Duke, with his blunt flirting, and the hauteur of the Duchess, both showed a keen grasp of the possibilities of their parts. The family and friends of the Duke and his lady were impersonated ably by Bernard Duffy as Viscount Cudworth, Irene de Ronde as Lady Cudworth, John Walz as the effeminate Brooke, and Ethel O'Donnell as Lady Brooke.

Harold Vucassovich, with his realistic slightly foreign accent, deserves great credit as the Russian spy, employed in Disraeli's office in Downing Street.

The less subtle humor of the play lay largely in the scene wherein William Mahoney, as the gardener, ousts the garrulous postman, played by Richard Sanderson, from Disraeli's room at Hughendon.

While it seems fair to laud the Seniors first, the highest tribute must be paid to Miss Lillian R. Hartigan, who is not only a dramatic coach of great power, but who is really a Senior at heart. It is to her that credit is due for making "Disraeli," the play of the Class of 1922, what it was—the finest of a long line of Senior Dramas.

SENIOR DRAMA CAST

CLASS HISTORY

The Class of 1922! To quote from William Shakespeare, a rather well-known tragedian, 'tis "a name to conjure with". It, meaning the class, shall be the envy of its forerunners and an example for its after-runners. Never has one graduating class seen such a group of geniuses, and no such class will ever, beyond all doubt, be seen again. It marks an era in the Cambridge High and Latin School; its passing should occasion as much for the class as a whole, as for the individual brilliancy of any of its members.

Although the Class of 1922 was pitiably late in organizing, its record during its last two years is excellent. Despite all obstacles the class did wonderfully well. I might introduce a little story to illustrate its fine spirit.

On the year of the entry of the Class of 1922, a lunch room was instituted under the supervision of a professional dietitian, ostensibly for the whole school. However, the inside story says that Mr. Cleveland, fearing that our class would be as weak and puny as the preceding ones, had recommended the idea. Of course, we appreciated the school's thoughtfulness, but there is such a thing as going too far. Therefore, instead of dashing downstairs daily to eat split pea soup and egg and olive sandwiches, we patronized our neighborhood hot-dog and ice-cream cone carts.

In a short while, the foiled lunch room backers had the street vendors removed. But to no avail. The whole class, irrespective of social or scholastic rank—for as Sam L. Burke, the famous playwright said in his famous dictionary, "Public calamity is a mighty leveller",—transferred its patronage to the ice-cream parlor down the street, thriving on greasy jelly rolls and pies. What more class spirit can be desired!

But to more serious matters. During its junior year, the class elected its officers: President, Luther Macnair; Vice-President, Rose Manning; Secretary, Ruth Norman; Treasurer, William Bunyan. The outstanding event of the year was the Junior Prom., which was held in the school gymnasium. It was well attended and well run,—characteristic of the class.

The Senior year, the officers elected were: President, Thomas Gibson; Vice-President, Ruth Tolman; Secretary, James Haley; Treasurer, William Connolly. During this year the most important events of the class were held. The Senior Drama, "Disraeli", was presented at Brattle Hall with remarkable success, in February. Toward the end of April the Senior Dance took place, also at Brattle Hall. The music was fine and the dance was well attended. The Senior Reception will he held in the near future, in the Walker Memorial Hall at M. I. T. On June 14th the graduation exercises of the Class of 1922 will be held.

With our class also the Liberty Prize Speaking Contest originated. The interest of a Liberty Bond, which was purchased by the pupils, is used each year to buy a medal which is given as a prize.

In the Freshman year of the class, the school operetta was first given and has been done each year until this last year, when the Glee Club Contest prevented it.

The Class of '22 also brought to the school a fine group of athletes. During its first two years its moral support alone helped the High and Latin School teams to defeat Rindge at baseball and football, victories well-earned, and in case of the football, waited for during seven years. Then, in the last two years of the class, when its members began to take part themselves, they were instrumental in giving the school the most remarkable baseball and hockey teams ever known to Cambridge Latin, besides fine football teams.

Here closes the collective history of the Class of '22. In the years to come each member must make his own. If the past performances count for anything, many of them will be closely interwoven with the history of our nation, and its future accomplishments.

The scene is laid fifteen years hence. It is in the late afternoon; a crowd of merry-making children coming home from school recall my own school days. A wave of memory brings time-worn pictures of dim remembered class-mates, of gay happenings and pleasures of memorable days, and an overpowering desire comes to meet again my quondam companions of the dear old Alma Mater.

On the impulse, I seize my radio telephone and ask for the Governor's office.

"Sorry! His Excellency, Mr. Rudman, is not in," I answered. "Perhaps tomorrow . . ."

"Little abashed, I demand of Central to be connected with Mr. Anderson of Cambridge. After a brief wait, a pleasant voice,—a lady's—says:

"Hello."

"Good afternoon. May I speak to Bill, please?"

"Just a moment."

A rather querulous voice asks in turn:

"Whatcha' want?"

"Hello, Bill, old boy,—don't you recognize the voice?"

"Naw,—who are you?"

"I say,—don't you remember at Latin School fifteen years ago . . ?"

"Oh, you must want my father; I'm little Bill. He's playing pool over to Jerry's with Mr. Frye an' Mr. Macnair an' Mr. Fessenden; he'll be home soon, I suppose. Leave any message?"

Finding it impossible to get in touch with any one by Radio, I resolve to take out my Fordroplane and go to Cambridge in the hope of meeting some of the old boys. After a short flight, I alight near Harvard Square at about seven o'clock, park my plane, and saunter into the Waldorf.

"One egg! Make it!"

Something familiar in that voice! Whose face but Jimmy Trahey's behind the counter! How could I ever have mistaken or forgotten the face or the voice! After cordial interchange of greetings, I ask for news of any of the boys.

"Why, they're mostly moved away now. Davy Bakeless is in Congress or something, and I hear that Izzie Zarakov is to be the new manager of the Red Sox. Paul Sullivan is a leading man in the movies, playing opposite Viola Joyce. That's all I know off-hand, about any of them."

A noisy pair breezes in the door, arresting my attention. In an instant I recognize them: Don Howard, dressed like a millionaire; Bill Brooks, even more handsome. Don seems glad to see me.

"Oh, I say, do you want to do me the greatest favor you ever did any living man? . . . Lend me ten rocks, will you? I'm stepping out to the theatre to see Tom Gibson in the "Follies", and . . ."

Gladly do I comply with the request; I am pleased to be of service to one of my old school-mates. Don and Bill soon quit the Waldorf and I am again alone. Having nothing better in mind, I went my way to the Follies, where I have a few minutes to wait the commencement of the play. I subject the program to a diligent perusal, in a manner of speaking, and am overjoyed to see familiar names! I read:

Book by R. Bennink and J. Walz.

Lyrics by G. Hochberg and H. Briggs.

Decorations and Costumes by Misses B. Brown and H. Burbank.

And at the very end of the program:

Chorus: Doris George, Mae Galvin, Caroline Brine, Frances Morgan, Joy Ingram, and Dorothy Stanton.

Head Scene-Shifter: I. Small.

Well, well! How they all have succeeded and won fame, I reflect. My mind wanders away in the contemplation of my school-mates and the decorations, more or less distant, that adorn the walls. My thoughts are suddenly and crassly interrupted.

"Hey there, lessee your check", some one demands. And I find that I have lost my seat check, after a determined but useless search of my pockets.

"Sorry. You'll have to leave," brass-buttons tells me.

"Now listen here", I remonstrate, "I had a ticket. I must have dropped it somewhere, and . . ."

I had just taken a first close scrutiny of my would-be ejector; it is Benny Rosenwald! Certainly I shall remain now, I consider. But Benny is obdurate, refuses to recognize me, and I am politely but firmly ushered to the exit. The whole theatre laughs at my plight. I notice Anita Carley with a gentleman friend; Bertha Donoghue and Ruth Norman, Ruth Morrison,—all are enjoying my disgrace. My heart turns bitter against everyone. Bursting with rage I walk from the theatre, hand in hand, kicking at imaginary Benny Rosenwalds, and telling my tale of woe to any and all passers-by. Once more the heavy hand of authority I feel on my shoulder; a seedy-looking individual flashing a police-badge announces his intention of causing my arrest for being in a state of inebriation. I argue and plead in vain.

An irate judge, Hon. John Field, gives me thirty days the following morning. I am ushered to my cell—a large one—and there, sitting around the wall are seventeen familiar faces. For the sake of feelings and reputations, I shall forego specific enumeration of their owners and of the weary drag of thirty days.

CLASS SONG

Words by J. A. W., Jr., '22 . Tune, St. Leonard

The happy years have flitted by
Like birds at early dawn,
They pass afar, not to return,
As they, we shall be gone.
A summer night the day we part!
With happy voices sing
The praises loud to our dear school,
How gratefully we bring!

The night that falls makes shadows tall
That tremble with the breeze,
Though voices laugh, there's in each heart
A pang that no one sees.
Like ocean spray we pass away
Unto some distant shore,
But still our hearts are ever true
As in the days of yore.

If we forget, if we forget
It cannot be for long,
For in each heart there strums a strain
This sweet and pleasant song:
We'll ne'er forget the good, old school
Nor e'en the teachers true
We'll not forget the friends we've made
Or the Class of '22!

CLASS POEM

THE GAME

The goal is set,—the players on the field,
The signal sounds! The strife begins to win
The day,—the struggle towards the goal.
How far away it looks! What labor; what rebuffs,
Before we reach it. What a trial this
That shows the stuff we're made of.
Effort,—still more effort,—play on play
And now we forward press and now we fall,
And now our errors lose us hard-gained ground;
Yet still the distant goal doth urge us on,
And all we have,—yes—more than we thought
We had of strength, it takes to hold our ground,
At last attain and gain the victory.

Let's change the figure. On the River Charles
The crews are at the start, the referee says "Row!"
The race is on! Friends line the banks and cheer.
The coxswain urges on the lab'ring men
To greater effort than they've made before.
The crew responds, and sets a higher stroke.
What toil! What sweat! What agony of breath!
And some are faint,—but hold the course we must!
What power have we now to call upon?
What grim endurance that shall pull us through?
What strength of will to hold on to the end;
No matter what it costs of suffering
And with a final spurt sweep by and win!

And so for these four years we've seen our goal—
And toward it we have pressed with eager hearts—
And now we've reached it—have we reached it yet?
Is this the end? the final victory?
Or is it but the start for sterner work?
The game of life in which we all must play,
That must take all, and more than we have now
To hold our place and at the last to win.
Ours is a flying goal that still moves on—
And where it goes we needs must follow it
With all our strength and learn to meet rebuffs,
Grow stronger through them in the years to come
And win our place as victors at the end!

The Senior Reception will be held on the thirteenth of June this year, just four days after the appearance of the Year Book. It will be in the Walker Memorial at Tech, and Sid Reinherz with an eight piece orchestra will provide the music. There will be punch served throughout the entire evening, and ice cream and cake during intermission. The committee has taken great pains to have the details perfect, and we may expect one of the best Senior Receptions in the history of the school.

The personel of the Reception Committee:

Vivian Farrell — Thelma Sundlie
Dorothy Stanton — Bertha Donoghue

Caroline Brine, Chairman.

The Patrons and Patronnesses:

The Honorable and Mrs. Edward W. Quinn
Mr. and Mrs. Leslie L. Cleveland
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Bramhall
Mr. and Mrs. Chester M. Bliss
Mrs. William Gibson — Mrs. A. H. Rudman
Mrs. George R. Brine — Miss Lillian R. Hartigan

The School Committee has been invited as guests.

Aside from the Reception, we had an additional dance this year, on the twenty-eighth of April. It was held in Brattle Hall, and the class and its friends were well represented. The music was furnished by the Oak Manor Orchestra, which came up to its usual high standard.

The arrangements were in the hands of the Reception Committee, to whom credit is due for the success of the Social.

The Patronesses were:

Mrs. George R. Brine — Mrs. Frank A. B. Stanton
Miss Lillian R. Hartigan — Miss Margaret Thurston

The Senior Class took an important part in the 1922 Get-Together Day, having charge of the food table. The appearance of the hall was improved by the Senior Table, which was remarkably well decorated in the class colors. The receipts from the sale of food were One Hundred Eighteen Dollars ($118.).

D. Mc. G. H.

We believe that our teachers are out of the ordinary in ability, and in the personal interest that they take in their pupils and in school activities.

Mr. Cleveland has been our adviser and our friend. He has directed our affairs with a far-seeing and wise system of supervision, and has won the esteem of all the pupils in the school.

Mr. Bramhall, although he attends to our discipline, nevertheless is one of the most popular of the faculty. He takes a great deal of interest in athletics, and in every school activity.

Miss Hartigan has done more for our class than any other Senior teacher. She coached the Senior Drama, made arrangements for the Senior Dance, supervised the Year Book and the Senior Reception, and did so many other things for us that we cannot remember them all. Without her our doings as a class would have amounted to nothing. The Senior Class cannot express sufficient gratitude to this tireless worker and real friend of each and every Senior.

Miss Spring's classes are never dull for everyone is either wondering on whom the next bit of pleasant sarcasm will fall, or laughing at her comments on some other pupil's recitation.

Miss McElroy has helped our class in many ways. She has taken an active part both in the French and Spanish clubs, and in helping us to swell our funds in the sale of cakes and candies at Get-Together Day.

Miss Schroeder possesses the rare faculty of being both a teacher and a mother to her pupils. We thank her for her confidence in the ability and honor of us, her children.

Miss Ricker's agreeable personality, her love of French, and the pleasing wrath with which she greets a very, very elementary mistake have made her and her classes beloved by all.

Miss Hardy as Faculty Advisor of the Review has always taken a keen interest in school affairs, and has at every time been willing to help any student activity along.

Miss Slade also has helped us on our typewriting for the Year Book. We wish to thank her for the cheerful manner in which she accepted the task, and for the efficiency with which she carried it out.

FACULTY (Continued)

Mr. Derry is a perfect gentleman and an accomplished scholar. There has never been a time when he has been too busy to get up interesting lectures for the various clubs of the school.

Miss Close conducts her English classes in an interesting yet thorough manner. Her interest in the Get-Together Day and in the other activities of the school has been very evident.

Miss Dolan has taught us the lesson that a nuisance and plenty of rope are sure to cause, eventually, a hanging. We wish to thank her for the many proofs she has given us of the truth of this saying.

Miss Rogers has been the life of the Modern Language clubs of the school. We appreciate the time and labor which she has spent in arranging programs for our amusement and edification.

Miss Flanders' efficient and thorough method of conducting her classes, as well as her interesting comments on philosophy, current events, and the arts, serve to make the English period an enjoyable one.

Miss Morton has been of great assistance to the class on all occasions. She has always been ready to supervise the making of posters, or the designing of cuts for any school activity or publication.

Miss Mason has inspired in her pupils a little bit of that school spirit which she herself possesses to such a great degree. We wish all were as loyal to the school as Miss Mason.

Miss Sampson has been invaluable to the class. She has arranged our programs in the best possible manner, and has taken from our shoulders the arrangements for College Board exams, and that is no little task.

Miss Dennett has aided our class materially in its production of the Year Book. She has had her pupils do typewriting and by this means enabled the Year Book to get to press much sooner than otherwise.

We have not said one-tenth of what we might about each teacher, for we owe to each one a debt of gratitude which cannot be expressed in words. Teachers, we shall never forget you and your kindness!

We realize that the success of this Year Book is due not alone to the Board, but in great measure to those in the school who, although not official members of the Board, nevertheless have given generously of their time and effort to make this Book what it is. We have no intention of allowing these helpers and their labors to remain unhonored and unsung. Therefore, we take this opportunity cordially to thank the pupils for their willing assistance, and also to express our appreciation for the fine support of those who by their cheerful subscriptions laid the corner stone of this Year Book.

This year's football team had a successful season. Although it failed to win the championship, the eleven won the majority of its games, and would have won more had it not lost the services of its captain, "Izzie" Zarakov. The team played its crucial games without him, and the result was that it lost to Newton and Malden.

The first game for Cambridge Latin was a 20-0 victory over St. Mark's. The team showed great power for such an early game. Dean Academy, the second game, was beaten next, 13-0. Cambridge opened its Suburban League schedule by defeating Somerville, 14-0. It was in this game that Zarakov was hurt, and it was not until the Medford game that the team recovered the form it lost then. With "Izzie" out of the game, Latin defeated Rindge, 3-0, in the second League tilt, thereby winning the championship of Cambridge. In the next game the team lost to Malden, 14-6, but won from Brookline the following week by the same score. And then came Newton!

For three battling periods the light Cambridge team held its heavier opponents in great style. But in the last quarter a Newton forward pass caught someone napping, and a touchdown followed for Newton. The final score was 14-0 in their favor. The next game showed Cambridge Latin at top form. With its captain in condition, the team shut out Medford, 21-0, the worst defeat a Medford team had sustained for many years. On Thanksgiving Day the Cambridge team finished its season by tieing Everett.

The first team was composed of the following players: Linemen, Jerry Sullivan, Joe Linehan, "Red" Groden, Sid Rudman, "Sandy" Clyde, Phil Smith, Maury Sullivan, "Duke" Sullivan, and Bill Anderson; backfield men, Captain "Izzy" Zarakov, "Tubber" Cronin, "Chick" Shea, Bernard Duffy, Frank Davies, Harold Frye, and "Purdie" Fitzgerald.

B. D.

BASEBALL 1922.

Coach MacDonald has three regulars and five substitutes from last year's championship team to build this year's team around. The regulars are: Captain "Tubber" Cronin, second baseman, "Jerry" Sullivan and "Ted" Duffy, outfielders. Last year's substitutes who are holding down regular positions are Davies, pitcher; Linehan, first base; Carver, shortstop; Clancy, third base; and Kelleher, outfielder. Dudley, catcher; Herlihy, pitcher; and Slack, Groden and Buchanan, outfielders, make up the rest of the first team.

In its first Suburban League game, played with Medford High School at Russel Field, North Cambridge, April 19, Cambridge Latin sustained its first defeat since 1920 (our team of 1921 having played its schedule of twenty-one league games and two post-season games without a defeat.) Cambridge Latin was leading 1—0 until Medford, by timely hitting aided by errors by Cambridge Latin, scored three runs.

Cambridge Latin lost its second Suburban League game 1—0 to Somerville High at Somerville, April 22.

On April 29, Cambridge Latin came back into her own when she defeated Malden High 5—4 at Russel Field. Although the score was close, Malden was never dangerous throughout the game.

At Newton, on May 6, the Cambridge Latin team upset all predictions when it smothered the Newton High team 11-4. Until then, the Newton team had not been defeated. Cambridge Latin demonstrated the fact that her team had hit its stride.

Cambridge Latin continued on the winning side when it defeated Everett High 7—0 at Russel Field, May 9.

The league race this year has every indication of being close and hard fought. Our team is now running smoothly, and we hope that the championship pennant will be brought again to Cambridge Latin. J. D. L. '22

HOCKEY

The Cambridge Latin School Hockey team of 1922 opened the season with very dubious prospects. But under the excellent coaching of Leander MacDonald, it succeeded in acquiring another hockey championship. Coach MacDonald started the season with only one veteran in the lineup, and from practically all green material, he turned out another great team. "Chick" Shea was lost to the team for the greater part of the season, but he played in the important games in the latter part of the season, at a time when he was needed most.

The team defeated its two great rivals, Melrose 1—0, and Newton 4—1, in hard fought games. The championship was secured when it defeated Arlington 5—0 in a game in which the wonderful team work of our boys was the feature. The last game of the season was played with Earl Grey School of Lachine, Canada. This game which was played for the International Interscholastic title, ended in a tie after four overtime periods,

The steady and consistent work of Captain "Tubber" Cronin and "Henny" Groden was in evidence throughout the season. The fighting qualities and sportsmanship of our boys made a most favorable impression on the followers of ice hockey at the Arena. In the words of a Boston sporting writer, "the Cambridge Latin team was the most popular schoolboy team to grace the Arena surface in years."

CREW

Crew began this year with bright prospects for another victorious season, as both of last year's championship crews reported intact except for Gustave Marsh, who rowed bow on the second crew.

The seven veterans: William Anderson, Sidney Rudman, Harold Fry, Philip Smith, Frank Fessenden, Paul Sullivan, Luther Macnair, and coxswain, Fitzgerald, coached the new candidates, among whom Albert Garner and Kingsley Hooker showed the most promise, during the weeks of preliminary training at the Newell boathouse.

The crews got out on the river on April 3rd, and after some delay, Jack Collier, a former C. H. L. S. oarsman, was appointed as coach. On the advice of the coach, Manager Brooks arranged a fairly light schedule, as it would not be wise to submit the crews to grueling contests just before the B. I. R. A. Regatta.

During the season, however, besides practice races, the crews have competed with Brown and Nichols, Noble and Greenough, Tabor Academy, and Rindge, in the Harvard Regatta and also with Pomfret Academy, at Pomfret.

Both crews have shown great improvement over last year in both skill and endurance, and there is great reason to hope that both crews will win the championships, and that the Keith Trophy will make its permanent home in C. H. L. S.

TRACK

The Track team began its season without the services of the letter men, Duffy, Crowley, Cote, Benedict and Cress, who were greatly missed. In answer to the call for candidates about thirty reported. Among them were many Freshmen and Sophomores, some of whom have shown great promise. Murphy, the 1000 yard man, for instance, raced second to Barney McDermot in very fast time in the West Roxbury meet. Meuse, a Freshman, is showing plenty of speed. Some of the men who have scored points thus far this year are Fort, Zaltman, Murphy, Blood and Miller. Fort has proven to be a very good high jumper.

The Track team has been severely handicapped by three things: the shortage of heavy men for the weight events, the lack of a suitable gymnasium for indoor practice, and the deplorable lack of interest in track and field sports. Unhampered by these disadvantages, the Cambridge High and Latin School might have ranked much higher in Track competition.

SENIOR BASKETBALL

The Senior basketball team has made a fine showing since its beginning in 1920. In 1921 the Seniors, who were then Juniors, won the championship. This year, however, the Seniors were second, the team of the Class of 1923 being the victors.

During the three years of the team's existence, splendid coaches have been obtained from Sargent School. This year the members are greatly indebted to Miss Foster, who put enthusiasm into the Senior work.

Although the same members have not comprised the team each year, it has always shown a good co-operative spirit, whether winning or losing.

The members of all the basketball teams were obliged to pass three major subjects in order to play with a team.

The members of the Senior team this year were: Margaret Herlihy, captain; Marguerite George and Ruth Norman, forwards; Anna Culhane and Beatrice Hooley, guards; Margaret Bacon and Anita Carley, jumping centers; and Irene De Ronde and Stephanie Novak, side centers.

All the members of the Senior team have won either class numerals or monograms from the Department of Physical Education.

G. A. A.

Under Miss Brown's supervision and sincere and appreciative helpfulness, and Irene De Ronde's capable leadership, with the aid of her energetic officers, the Girls' Athletic Association has had a memorable year. The officers are:

President: Irene S. De Ronde.

Vice-President and Treasurer: Ruth H. Norman.

Secretary: Beatrice Hooley

Executive Committee: Anna Culhane, Marguerite George, Eleanor Groden, Beatrice L. Norman.

As the G. A. A. and the Department of Physical Education are combined, the Point System has necessitated the raising of money by the G. A. A. to pay for the monograms and numerals which are awarded in June to girls who have followed the prescribed rules of health. For about two weeks in October the officers conducted a table of sweets outside the gymnasium door. The proceeds were thirty-one dollars. In addition, class "Fuzzy Wuzzies"—yarn dolls in class-colors—were sold, the proceeds of which are to assist in defraying the expense of the numerals and monograms.

"The Periscope," the G. A. A. newspaper, has been edited very efficiently by Catherine Usher, a Junior. Because of the great expense of publication, the April issue was printed by the "Periscope" staff at Rindge.

A social meeting was enjoyed on Friday, April 7th, at which "The Three Bears" was cleverly pantomimed, and other interesting selections were presented; and on Saturday evening, April 22, the annual Boy Dance was held at the Agassiz School Hall.

THE REVIEW

The "Review" will soon close another successful year by publishing its fifth and last issue, which should be a fitting climax for the season.

In spite of the increase in the price of the Review this year, the students subscribed in a truly noteworthy fashion, and we feel that we have been successful in giving them their money's worth. Each issue has been bigger and better than ever before, and the printing has been much easier to arrange, as it has been done by Mr. Nightingale, father of our business manager.

The Editorials have been inspiring; the Literary Department, although small, has been of a very high quality; the Alumni page has been one of the largest in the history of the Review; Athletics have been exceptionally well reported; Debating news has been carefully chronicled; the Clubs have had their share of publicity; the French and Spanish pages have been adopted in many of the hundred and twenty schools on an Exchange list; the Advertising Managers have worked miracles; and behind all this success, energetically directing it, has stood Miss Hardy, our competent faculty adviser.

May next year's staff have as much success as we have had; and may they continue the work of surpassing the attainments of the previous year!

THE KLAWHOWJHA BJUSTOFE CLUB

The Klawhowjha Bjustofe Club has just completed a most successful year under the guidance of their advisors, Miss Elliott, Miss Hartigan and Miss Thurston. We wish to take this opportunity of expressing our gratitude to them for their kind assistance. Our officers for this year were: President, Margaret Hadley; secretary, Marcia Stevens; treasurer, Helen Chase.

Among the activities of the club were several hikes; two of the most interesting were: One to Brook Farm, which is now the Martin Luther Orphan Home, and the other to Blue Hill, where supper was served at the Appalachian Club. An informal dance following a brief talk by Mr. Good at the Bay State Apartments on Armistice night; a dance at Beech Street Bungalow; and a dinner dance composed the rest of our social activities.

We also took an active part in school affairs. At Get-Together Day we had charge of the punch and peanut booth in the hall, and under the existing circumstances, did exceptionally well.

At Christmas time the girls made up a basket of gifts for the orphans at the Martin Luther Home. The members of the club themselves had a Christmas Party which was enjoyed very much by all.

We sincerely hope that the K. B. Club will, in years to come, flourish and enjoy a similarly successful season at C. H. L. S. H. C.

F. A. C.

The Four Arts Club, one of the oldest of the existing clubs of the Cambridge High and Latin School was formed in the fall of 1919 by a group of talented students of the school, for the purpose of promoting interest in certain arts, namely: dramatics, drawing, literature and music, among the pupils.

In the year 1920-21, the club made its entry into school activities. The first thing that was held was a Prize contest in each of the four arts which the club was fostering. The winners of these very successful contests were presented with cups. Following that event, a play was given, "The Crimson Cocoanut," which was quite successful.

The officers were: President, L. Macnair; Secretary and Treasurer, R. Bennink; Executive Committee, Marion Langley, Louise Hall, and H. Vucassovich. Many fine programs were given at the meetings, notably the musicales, and talks by Miss Ricker, Mr. Derry and Mrs. Macnair. The club also had charge of tagging during Get-Together Day, and thereby netted about eighty dollars.

It is the sincere hope of the out-going Seniors, most of whom were charter members, that the club will flourish and accomplish its all-important object, the kindling of interest in the Four Arts at the Cambridge High and Latin School.

DEBATING

Debating is an activity that is recognized and supported by both the teachers and pupils. Being closely allied to Elocution and Prize Speaking, it has been under the successful direction of Miss Hartigan for several years. Under her coaching Cambridge Latin and High School easily defeated Malden High School Literary Society on the subject: "Resolved that labor unions are justified in maintaining the policy of the closed shop."

The team representing the school was made up of Arthur G. King '22, captain; Milan N. Drake, '23, rebuttal; Walter McLoughlin, '24; Theodore Wolcott, '24, alternate. King won the Liberty Medal for Prize Speaking in 1918 and has been active in both Debating and Declamation. Milan Drake, the editor of the Review, and Walter McLoughlin, a sophomore, won the Durrell Cup together last year, and have shown ability in argument.

Another important event of the year was the Durrell Cup Debate on the subject of government ownership and control of the coal mines. The two teams contesting for the cups were: Affirmative, Walter McLoughlin, captain, Theodore Wolcott, Webster Thierry. Negative: Louis Barron, captain, Roy Lamson, Jr., Haskell Freedman. Many of these were lower classmen, but they have shown themselves capable of handling even more difficult subjects.

Walter McLoughlin was already a winner of the Durrell Cup, and had on his team two who have been prominent in inter-class debating. On the other team, the captain, Louis Barron, was one of the best lower class debaters, and his team-mates, although Freshmen, showed themselves fully equal to their opponents. After an evening of exciting and interesting debating, the decision and the trophies were awarded to the team.

MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS

The musical clubs had a very successful season during the past year. But few of the groups were in any way inferior to the groups of previous years and such ones had suffered the loss of experienced members by graduation. Mr. Whoriskey, the musical supervisor, was very well pleased with the work accomplished.

It may be said with fairness that the most prominent organization was the Boys' Glee Club led by Isadore Zarakov. This body was organized in answer to a challenge from Rindge to contest for a Gold Cup now held by the Latin School. The contest took place this year in the Washington Building, Rindge Technical School, on May 25th. To the enthusiasm, engendered by a desire to defeat its rival, can be attributed the successful year of the glee club.

The choir, composed largely of new members, was rather slow in attaining the high standard of co-operation of previous years. Great improvement, however, was made in the last year, which rendered the choir capable of its splendid performance at the graduation.

At the Senior Drama, the Prize Speaking Contest and at the Glee Club Contest, the school orchestra rendered many excellent selections. This club is composed of a highly talented personnel, forming the best school orchestra in the school's history.

A mandolin club has been formed, which, although it did not appear in public, derived much amusement from playing afternoons.

Mr. Whorisky produced a series of soloists which were arrayed in attractive programs for the Thursday Morning Assemblies, and were very well received and appreciated by the audience. Realizing that we have many pupils of exceptional ability, Mr. Whorisky has taken this novel method of assisting them.

We Seniors wish Mr. Whorisky continued success in his great work, confident that in the friendships which he has formed and the memories which he shares with us, he will have ample reward. S. C.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club (La Sociedad Espanola) has been in existence for two years. Its object has been to promote interest in the Spanish language by offering programs wholly Spanish.

The first year the club was entertained by several distinguished speakers, among whom were people from South America, Cuba and the Philippines.

Unfortunately, a change in program this year made it practically impossible to secure speakers. Last year the meetings were held after school hours; this year it was decided by the foreign language department to hold them during a special period in the morning.

Therefore, the programs this year, consisting of plays, selections, etc., have been presented by the members themselves. Mr. Derry spoke at one meeting on the "Development of the Spanish Language." Shortly after this writing there will be a meeting, the program of which will consist of several selections of Spanish music and a short comedy.

The Spanish Club this year had a table at the annual Get-Together Day. Much attention was drawn to it by the Spanish decorations and by the Spanish costumes worn by Grace Lord and Charles V. Gatto, who were in charge. The table earned fifty-two dollars.

The officers for the year 1921-1922 were: Charles V. Gatto, president; Joseph Linehan, vice-president; Olive Pitchford, vice-president; Adelaide Harlow, secretary; Rose Smith, assistant secretary; Harry Zaltman, treasurer; Loretta Bangs, assistant treasurer; Abraham Nedderman, chairman of the Board of Directors; Grace Lord, editor on Publicity and agent.

C. G.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Thru the death of Mrs. Burton, the founder and faculty advisor of the French Club, the organization suffered a keen loss; for her generous expenditures of time and energy had always been so cheerfully and unselfishly given that without her inspiring presence it seemed that there could be no French Club; but Miss Rogers determined to prevent the untimely death of such an influential organization, and early in December the following officers were elected:

President—Anita Carley
Vice-President—Luther Macnair
Secretary—Elliot Spaulding
Assistant Secretary—Lester King

During the year a new method of arranging the program was tried with great success. Each of the four meetings was under the direction of a French teacher, who presented all of the available novelties.

Scenes from "Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon", "L'Avare", "L'Oncle Sam en France", and "L'Abbe Constantin" have been presented; and in addition, a sketch of the life of Joan of Arc, a resume of a French story, French songs, and a talk by a fascinating French woman.

Great credit for this year's success is due to the teachers who have provided such excellent entertainment, and to Miss Rogers, who has engineered the scheme.

THE CHESS CLUB

The Chess Team has had remarkable success in its first year of competition. It was not defeated by any high school team; the only match lost was to the Technology Freshmen, and the same team was defeated in a later game.

The Boston Evening Transcript has recognized our team as the local champions, and because of the record made by it, a correspondence match game has been arranged between the High School of Commerce of New York City, the champions of the New York City High School League, and our team. The team for the New York game is composed of Harold Rosenwald, Morris Hochberg, Harry Isenstein, and James Meere.

The record of the Chess Team is:

Huntington	2	Cambridge	6
Somerville High	1	Cambridge	5
Boston Latin	3	Cambridge	5
Heizlean Club	1	Cambridge	3
Tech Freshmen	7	Cambridge	1
Tech Freshmen	2	Cambridge	5
Chelsea High	1½	Cambridge	6½

Chess has been given a most auspicious start this year; let us hope for a continuance of the interest and success in 1923.

PRIZE SPEAKING

John O'A. Field

The fourth annual Prize Speaking Contest was held on April 21st in the Latin School Hall. The prizes are the result of the buying of Liberty Bonds by the scholars during the world war. It was decided that the interest accruing from the bonds would each year be used for the purchase of medals, emblematic of victory, to be given as prizes in an annual prize speaking contest. The program presented was uniformly good, measuring well up to the standards of previous years. The program:

The Highwayman.....Alfred Noyes
Alice Gunzleman

Invective Against Louis Bonaparte
Victor Hugo
Roy Lamson, Jr.

At Home to His Friends
Booth Tarkington
Dorothy Woodrow

Address to the American Legion
Frank Crowther
John Field

Florence Mason

The Guide and the Doctor.Mark Twain

The Unknown Speaker...Anonymous
John Kelley

Mrs. E. Charlton Black, Miss Mary Winn and Mr. Irvah L. Winter adjudged the best speakers to be, Miss Alice Gunzleman for the girls and John Field for the boys. Miss Janet Clark and Frank Thomas received honorable mention. Miss Gunzleman's tonal shading characterized her difficult selection, and the fire and resonance of John Field's voice was exceptionally noteworthy.

The fineness of the entire program, which was under the supervision of Miss Hartigan, gave evidence of her care and zeal in the preparation of the contestants.

REGRETS or MEMORIES?

Senior, Which? (A Play in One Anguish)

(The delirium of a Senior in 1950 who fought bravely in Flanders field but did not subscribe for the Year Book).

The Senior may be of either sex but having no (school) spirit we consider the Senior inanimate.

Apologies to W. S.'s "Mac", Act 5, Scene 1

Cast: It the N. S. S. (non-subscribing Senior)
Doctor
S. S. S. (school spirited Senior)

ACT 1 SCENE 1

Dunce-inane, a room in the asylum.

The stage is set in a super-impressionistic, cubistical setting which would make a Dadist's scenery seem child's play. The stage is so remarkably lighted that nothing is discernible. It enters with the Candle of Regret in his hand. Once in a while a light strikes Its hair, chin and nose but never long enough to show how It looks.

Now begins a mysterious tremulo of lights. All the colors of the rainbow glow, ever changing like a kalidiscope. This is to symbolize the agony of It's spirit and ever burning over all like a er—er a lighthouse is the Cradle of Regret.

Still, this is the new art and nothing must be said against it. Everything else they persist in keeping as dark as possible, only It, dressed in pajamas, they illuminate with an unusually strong spot-light.

It comes down center stage and is met by a troop of old men representing the years gone by.

In a procession they march by It, 1922 a great bag of gold marked with the figures 2½, on a tiny red book. Struggling and stumbling under his load, he disappears into darkness again. Following him are many other years. Each carries a bag of gold on a red book. As the years progress the bag of gold grows smaller and smaller and the book increases in size until finally 1950 enters carrying an enormous red book, gorgeous with the letters C. H. L. S. On the book is a bag the size of a speck.

It. Out dammed spot! Out, I say—
One two—and a half, why there's
Plenty of time to do it. What need
I, who have not subscribed, fear of Regretting ? Yet who would have Thought the old book had so much
In it?

REGRETS OR MEMORIES

Doc. Do you mark that?
It. Say, I can't remember Fifi's looks
And she was in my class; where
Is she now?—What, no more a' that
No more a' that, I will be giving
Myself away. Don't let them know
You wish you'd bought it.
Doc. Go to go to—. It said what It should not.
S. S. S. It has spoken what It should not
I'm sure of that. Heaven knows It
Wishes It had,
Subscribed to the Year Book.
It. Here's the smell of the money still: all
The ideals in America cannot purge my
Thoughs of money. Oh, oh, oh!
Doc. What a sign is there! The pocket is heavily charged.
S. S. S. I would not have such a regret in
My bosom for all the gold It
May now possess
Doc. Well, well, well—
S. S. S. Well, well it be well.
Doc. This disease is beyond my practice;
Yet I have known those who
Have walked in their sleep who have
Died without forgetting anything of their School days.
It. Wash your hands of the affair
Put on a bold front coupled
With two spots of rouge;—
I tell you yet again it's too late
There's not another left.
Doc. Even so.
It. To bed, to bed; memories knock
Come, come away,—lend me a hand,
—no? Alas, what's done cannot be
Undone; to bed, to bed or all I shall forget.

(Exit It, groaning, harassed on every side by the Imps of Trying to Remember.)

The stage becomes pitch black for a half an hour signifying utter despair. The audience is requested not to sniffle in the heartrending scene. Then is seen very faintly a shaft of rosy light that takes five minutes to become strong enough to show the Present holding the S. S. S. by the hand. (The shaft of light represents your chance of escaping a similar delirium.)

S. S. S. But what's not done, still may be done; then, what was done will not be undone.

A CLASSY TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Senior stepped into their 1922 roadster ready to take the road to Success. It was a long and crooked journey through many crooked Lanes and up many a steep Grade, but the Morgan millions and Fair weather contributed to their comfort. After stopping at the Ritz Carlton for a few expensive days, they thought it would be well to cross to Scotland and from there go and visit King George. As usual, they obtained Carr tickets. When they arrived they were greeted by Carrolling birds.

A CLASSY TRIP (Continued)

The Macumber and McKinnon clans came down to meet them, followed by the Mac Nair clan, whereupon Mrs. Senior exclaimed:—

"I Lovett here."

"Glad to hear it," returned her husband," but what shall we do with the car? Where shall I Parker?"

"Oh, Cooper up near the smooth Clyde yonder that mingles with the Briney deep, suggested Mrs. Senior."

"Say, didn't they give us a rousing welcome here," she continued.

"Well, as for cheering, I dare say the O'Brien's, the Mahoney's and the McCarthy's lungs are quite as good. I think I hear them now across the channel welcoming us," replied her husband.

"Of course, they are so unique (in making noise?) and independent," asserted Mrs. Senior as she sat herself down on a Paddock in a Field.

After a short Moody silence, she began speaking again:—

"Look at my lovely May flowers from Galvins. They are all withered"!

"I suppose I'd better throw them into the Clyde."

As I Drew some of the flowers out of her coiffure where she had artfully placed them, she noticed to her horror, a Gray strand of hair.

"Well," thought Mr. Senior, "I'll have to Kidder and tell her that her hair isn't gray at all."

Taking her Hand he comforted her and suggested that as the next day was a Holliday, they would give a Small (big) dance. Mrs. Senior, swallowing her recent discovery with difficulty, gladly acquiesced. The next evening, the Seniors held their dance.

Senior Dunn, one of the many members of the Senior family, dressed in Brown as usual (he likes brown especially), was of course there.

Everybody enjoyed the dancing as long as a Walz wasn't played. When at last it was over, the guests all acclaimed the Senior dance to be the best they ever had attended.

The next day Mr. and Mrs. Senior left in their Little roadster for England. After surmounting great difficulties, they finally reached the goal of their ambitions. Here stood a statue of a man of gold, (Goldman), their ambitions. Here stood a statue of a man made of gold, (Goldman), and not far away was another very similar to it. From here their ascent to fame and fortune was easy (of course, with so much gold back of them).

By keeping in mind the old proverb "Hitch your wagon (Ford or Packard, as the case may be) to a star," Mr. and Mrs. Senior of 1922 will soon shine forth as a beacon light for all past, present and future classes to follow if they expect to attain the heights that will be reached by the remarkable class of NINETEEN TWENTY-TWO!

EPILOGUE

Our bark has almost reached the shore,
  Its journey's here enrolled,
The storied scroll of yester years,
  In this our book is told,

But as the sun at even tide,
  When sinking to her rest,
Leaves golden streaks of light behind
  Illumining the West.

May we, when we have left this school,
  That's grown in memory dear,
Leave after us the glorious light
  Of another golden year.

"Art Is Long"

Because it is real and true. The trivial, superficial and cheap must inevitably disappoint in photography as in everything.

Look at some of your old photographs. Rare indeed is the home that has not some terrible examples of inartistic posing which are charitably put among the things to laugh at. They never were good art, so never can be right. Sane, true, normal art never pales. Sensible posing is half of the secret of Purdy photographs and their popularity.
